

Executive Summary

Total Revenue	Total Profit	Average Profit Margin	Top Revenue Category	Top Revenue Region
$287,016,349,060	$84,765,610,511	34.37%	Household	Sub-Saharan Africa

Insights

- The business exhibits structural stability, with consistent margin behavior across time, geography, and distribution channels.
- Revenue growth is predominantly volume-driven, indicating operational scale expansion rather than pricing volatility.
- Profitability dispersion is primarily product-driven, with select categories materially outperforming their revenue-weighted contribution.
- Geographic exposure is diversified and margin-neutral, limiting concentration risk across regions.
- Channel performance remains balanced, with no structural reliance on either Online or Offline distribution.
- The strongest strategic lever lies in optimizing product mix and capital allocation toward high-margin categories rather than geographic or channel expansion.

Revenue & Profit Remained Structurally Stable Over Time

High Revenue Does Not Translate Into High Profitability

Revenue Is Diversified Across Regions With Limited Margin Variation

Time Intelligence Analysis

Total Revenue	Total Profit	Average Profit Margin	Total Units Sold
$287,016,349,060	$84,765,610,511	34.37%	1,078,397,811

Insights

- Financial performance demonstrated sustained stability across the six-year period.
- Margin consistency suggests disciplined pricing and cost management.
- Revenue fluctuations were primarily driven by changes in sales volume rather than pricing efficiency.
- The business exhibits a structurally stable operating model.

Revenue Growth Flat, Profit Margin Steady Over Time

Revenue and profit remained stable 2010– 2016 with no structural volatility

Quarterly Revenue Trends Closely Mirror Sales Volume

Revenue distribution shows limited seasonal variation from 2010 to 2016.

Stable Revenue Performance Supported by Consistent Sales Volume

Product Performance Analysis

Top Revenue Category	Top Profit Category	Top Profit Margin Category	Top 3 Categories Revenue %
Household	Cosmetics	Clothes	55%

Insights

- Revenue is concentrated in Household and Office Supplies, increasing dependency on scale-heavy categories.
- Profitability efficiency is strongest in Clothes, Cereal, Vegetables, and Cosmetics.
- Margin underperformance in Office Supplies and Meat limits profit conversion from scale.
- Cosmetics demonstrates the strongest balance between revenue scale and margin strength.
- The portfolio is stable but structurally misaligned, with scale and efficiency not fully aligned.

Household and Office Supplies Dominate Revenue, While Cosmetics Delivers Strong Profit Contribution

Margin Strength Is Concentrated in Clothes, Cereal, and Vegetables, Not in Revenue Leaders

Cosmetics and Clothes Contribute Disproportionately to Profit, While Office Supplies and Meat Underperform

Product Performance Analysis

Highest Revenue Region	Highest Revenue Country	Lowest Revenue Region	Regional Revenue Variability
Sub-Saharan Africa	Maldives	North America	17.37%

Insights

- Revenue is regionally diversified, with Sub-Saharan Africa and Europe jointly leading scale contribution.
- North America represents the smallest revenue base, indicating potential underpenetration rather than margin weakness.
- Regional profit margins remain structurally aligned (~34%), confirming standardized pricing and cost efficiency globally.
- Top revenue countries show highly consistent performance levels, reinforcing broad geographic distribution rather than market dependency.
- Geographic variation does not materially impact profitability; volume distribution, not margin disparity, drives regional differences.
- Overall portfolio risk from geographic concentration appears low.
